Visiting a Zoo

A. Reading

Today is Ming Chow's birthday, and he is at the zoo. He is at the zoo with his father, his sister, and two of their friends. It is Saturday morning, and the zoo is crowded. The kids at the zoo are noisy, and they don't want to wait in long lines to see the animals. Some kids are pushing other kids and kicking the cages of the animals. Mr. Chow, Ming's father, is upset because he doesn't think children should behave like that. He doesn't want to cause a problem with the other parents, but he wants to stop the children from pushing other children and kicking the animal cages. What can Mr. Chow do? How can he solve his problem?
